Die ASSITEJ Austria und das internationale Theaterfestival SCHÄXPIR schreiben die Teilnahme am Next Generation Projekt im Rahmen des ASSITEJ International Meetings vom 20.-30. Juni 2013 in Linz aus. Die Ausschreibung richtet sich an junge, österreichische und internationale Künstler, die im Rahmen des Meetings gemeinsam Erfahrungen austauschen, Vorstellungen besuchen & Masterclasses absolvieren.

As part of the 2. ASSITEJ International Meeting organized by ASSITEJ Austria and the International Theatre Festival SCHÄXPIR, ASSITEJ's Next Generation Project will continue. Young and emerging artists and practitioners from the field of theatre for young audiences are welcome to apply. Applications are open now until January 30th 2013!

The program is open to young and emerging artists from any country, interested in the practice of theatre for young audiences and international collaboration. Young and emerging is not age restrictive: it is dependent on an acknowledgement of being at a developing stage of career with a focus on younger professionals. It also relates to new thinking in theatre for young audiences. Participating individuals should be working professionals with a background or interest in children's theatre and work for young audiences. Next Generation is a unique opportunity for young and emerging artists to exchange their experiences, to discuss diverse artistic approaches and attend masterclasses. 25 places are available. The working language is English.

The project will involve the following key activities:

1. A programme of festival performances attended by the group
2. A programme of forums, discussions and masterclasses
3. A small presentation of the results at the end of the festival/meeting.

The programme will give participants the opportunity to immerse themselves in SCHÄXPIR while creating strong, meaningful connections with artists around the world.

Participants will be supported by the SCHÄXPIR through free tickets, accommodation and meals throughout the festival. Please note that participants need to provide their own airfare/travel to attend the Festival.
